

WILD PLACES PUBLISHING
and Descent magazine

Descent Newsletter (19) November 2022

It's nearly the end of November and heading into the festive season, so it seemed timely to send another newsletter, now from the broader Wild Places Publishing rather than Descent. After 34 years editing the magazine, you will know that we have passed the torch to Stalactite Publishing, while we return to our roots in publishing and selling fine caving books and calendars.

We also still have several new or recent books available (some of which have this month gone out of stock and been subject to reorders): Hidden Worlds by Robbie Shone, Lechuguilla Cave by Max Wisshak and Hazel Barton, and Underground Symphony and Les Grottes de Han from the Philippe Crochet and Annie Guiraud team. Any or all would make fine presents (yes, Christmas is coming ... Click the covers for more details.

Finally, our mugs and T-shirts offer continues – so if you fancy either a hard-wearing mug or high-quality garment (some sizes and colours have sold out but there is still plenty of choice), help us to clear the remaining stock. The shirts are ethically sourced and the mug designs are ceramic fired and won't fade.

We have completed the tweaks to our website for now and are working on a replacement. In our last newsletter we commented that two modules for taking payment were available, with one to cease functioning soon (or else we are paying two providers). If you have any preference about either please let us know - feedback is valuable.

Thanks go to everyone who has sent messages of support during the transition from publishing Descent (yes, this has represented a severe lifestyle change: some of the received comments are online for anyone interested. And with that ...

Best wishes from
Chris & Judith
